Project title

Cryptographic Beings

Full Project Title

Cryptographic Beings

Describe your project in a short and engaging way. This will be used in communication towards the public.

Cryptographic Beings is a bio-hybrid machine storing digital data in living algae. Marimo moss balls float or sink through photosynthesis, forming biological binary memory. Robotic arms control light to write; sensors read back. Each write consumes real metabolic resources: data permanence depends on ecological care, not silicon. The work stages the tension between accelerationist extraction and symbiotic stewardship: will our data infrastructures cultivate life, or consume it?

Where was your project implemented?

France

At which level is the project implemented? (e.g., does the project cover the entire national level, one or several regions, city(ies)/village(s) etc.)
